What is a spot welding machine?

Spot welding has its name as the current is applied precisely over a small area on the metal's surface. The resistance spot welding equipment can be in the form of stationary or bench-type welding machines, portable spot or robotic welding guns, and multi-head spot welding machines designed for different applications.

Which welding machine is better a spot welder or a projection welding machine?

Projection welding machines are usually larger than spot welders and offer more weld power and weld force. Flash butt welding is a type of electrical resistance welding used to join components in which the energy is transferred by the resistance heat created by the parts themselves.

What is the difference between spot welding and projection welding?

Projection welding has a wider range of applications than spot welding; from welding nuts and bolts to sheet components to huge bearings and crossbars that form grating panels. Projection welding machines are usually larger than spot welders and offer more weld power and weld force.
